

CLUMSY SOLUTIONS FOR A COMPLEX WORLD

A workshop sponsored by the Max Planck Project Group on Common Goods & the ESRC "Science in Society" Programme

Location: Saïd Business School, University of Oxford

AGENDA

Friday, 4 April 2003

19.00: Reception and buffet at the Saïd Business School

Saturday, 5 April

Chair:	Marco Verweij
9.00-9.15: Welcome	Marco Verweij
9.15-10.00: What Is Clumsiness?	Steve Rayner and Mike Thompson
10.00-10.55: How Safe Are Safety Seat Belts?	John Adams

Coffee break

Chair:	Christoph Engel
11.15-12.10: Viable and Unviable Hydro Policies: An Example from the Himalaya	Dipak Gyawali
Forget the Kyoto Protocol: Curb Global Warming Instead	or: Marco Verweij
12.10-13.00: The Strange Case of Western Aid to Eastern Europe	Janine Wedel

Lunch

Chair:	Steven Ney
15.00-16.00: More Statistics, Less Persuasion: A Cultural Theory of Gun Control Perceptions	Don Braman
16.00-17.00: Is Encryption Making the Internet Virtually Clumsy?	Tommy Tranvik & Per Selle

20.00: Dinner

Sunday, 6 April

Chair:

9.30-10.30: Is It a Wall, Snake, Brush, Tree, Fan, or Spear? Buddha's Parable of the Elephant and the Six Blind Men Applied to the American University

Frank Hendriks

Susanne Lohmann

10.30-11.30: Floods and Loss-Sharing:

A Clumsy Solution from Hungary

Joanne Linnerooth-Bayer &
Anna Vari

Coffee break

Chair:

11.50-13.00: Clumsy Conclusions
Christopher Hood

Christoph Engel

Richard

Ellis

&

Lunch